

TEC partners with College of Integrative Medicine

Wisdom is one of Transformation's Points of Culture and the cornerstone to our continued growth and success. As your partner in holistic and integrative care we continue to search for opportunities to expand our thoughts, practice, and network of like-minded professionals who align with our core philosophies helping us fulfill our vision.

We are proud to announce our newest education partner — the College of Integrative Medicine (C.I.M.). Among its many resources, the main focus of the C.I.M. is the CIHP (Certified Integrative Healthcare Practitioner) Certification Program. The CIHP program is designed to help practitioners acquire clinical integrative healthcare knowledge about the nature of illness, healing, and wellness. Practitioners will learn to incorporate evidence-based, safe, and ethical integrative therapies. Because some practitioners are new to integrative medicine and others are already practicing IM protocols, the program starts with the basics and builds into a comprehensive platform to ensure that all practitioners are afforded the full concepts of an integrative medicine approach to health care.

The CIHP program is a 300-hour distance learning (with 1 live) post-graduate program that includes the clinical protocols and the tools necessary for primary care practice. Packed with case presentation and treatment protocol, this program teaches cutting edge, clinically relevant materials in the treatment of acute and chronic conditions from an integrative medicine perspective. Includes loaded Reference Libraries to help today's busy clinician streamline their practice.

About C.I.M.

The College of Integrative Medicine is dedicated to offering only the highest quality post-graduate education and resources available for today's busy integrative healthcare practitioner. By translating the best of science, research, and development into one resource, practitioners are able to transfer a broader knowledge of integrative healthcare into exceptional professional development and practice.

Serving a broad arena of health care professions that include medical physicians, naturopathic physicians, osteopathic physicians, nurse practitioners, physician's assistants, nurses, pharmacists, optometrists, and doctors of chiropractic, among others, the College of Integrative Medicine was born out of a need voiced by practitioners. Our mission is to offer programs, products, and resources that serve to provide quality patient care, outcomes, and collaborative efforts within the integrative health care arena.
